

In partnership with our clients

Why we are different

We have provided a service to the community of East Anglia since 1858. The practice was started in chambers at Hall Quay, Great Yarmouth in 1858, by Mr Lovewell Blake who later became a founder member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants when it was incorporated by Royal Charter in 1880.

The firm has grown to its present six offices and three market day offices in Norfolk and Suffolk. This has been achieved by providing a service where no client is considered too small for personal interest and attention.

During the last ten years we have developed teams of dedicated specialists who provide the highest level of advice underpinned by cost effective and efficient accounts and tax work. Our people are most important assets and we place great emphasis on their professional development in order that they can realise their full potential. Their success is one of the key drivers of the success of the firm.

Throughout our history, we have maintained independence from the major national groups as we believe it is important to retain flexibility and move swiftly to meet client needs. Our unrivalled success of this approach continues to benefit our clients and differentiates us from our competitors.

Our clients

We form close working relationships with our clients to maximise the benefits we offer. We see ourselves as a partner in our client's team, helping to develop solutions and making a major contribution to the growth and success of the businesses which we serve - using our independence and objectivity to bring a different perspective to the strategic thought process.

We are more than accountants, we get to know you and your specific needs, offering a portfolio of services that can be tailored to you and your business. We invest both time and care in the early stages of the relationship to ensure that we become familiar with your operating and market conditions and to put together the most appropriate team to meet your immediate and long term needs.

Our associates

We are a member of HLB International. Formed in 1969, HLB International is a world-wide network of independent professional accounting firms and business advisers. For further information visit www.hlbi.com
